WE NOMINATE

the fifty members of Princeton's Old Guard who—through their actions, their beliefs and their contagious enthusiasms—are out-Pitkinning Walter B. Pitkin, eminent psychologist credited with the maxim, "Life Begins at Forty". Representing outstanding achievement in 12 broad fields of endeavor, and including among its membership 13 octogenarians (80-89), 27 septuagenarians (70-79), seven sexagenarians (60-69) and only three men under 60, the Old Guard continues to demonstrate to the community that youth is essentially a state of mind rather than a time of life.

Founded late in 1942, Princeton's Old Guard is one of a handful of informal organizations dedicated to the promotion of fellowship, the preservation of mental alertness and the maintenance of lively interest in municipal, national and world affairs. To these ends, it meets nearly 40 times each year and considers subjects ranging from trends in physical education, to news broadcasting, to Russian-American relations, to the "Nature and Destiny of Man". All members must have seen half a century of life and must be either retired or semi-retired professional and business men.

The Old Guard's roster, which lists natives of 17 different states and three foreign countries, presents an almost startling variety of backgrounds. Averaging 77 years of age, the members by sharing their principal interests in active life have found the antidote for stagnated thinking. At a Wednesday session it is not unusual to find a former university president, the first engineer to bridge the Upper Mississippi, distinguished doctors, an international lawyer, retired missionaries and ministers, successful businessmen, the discoverer of "hybrid corn", a celebrated biologist and other respect-inspiring personalities in the sphere of education.

For helping to prove that friendship and understanding are the keys to freedom and peace for both men and the nations of the earth; for returning to the general life of Princeton the stimulating currents of interest that flow through their meetings; for upholding the highest kind of faith in a world torn by doubt and despair, the members of the Old Guard are TOWN TOPICS' candidates for

One Princeton? A meeting to crystallize public opinion on the oft-mentioned merger of the Borough and Township is scheduled for Tuesday night at 8:15 at the Elementary School. What lends particular interest to the session is the fact that the proposal has never before been publicly debated and the reaction of "isolationist" townshippers may now be heard formally for the first time.

The League of Women Voters, sponsoring organization, has rounded up an unusually able group of speakers to discuss their particular fields; Dr. Charles R. Erdman, Jr., on consolidation of local government services; Dr. William Miller on taxation and finance; Russell V. N. Black, author of Princeton's master plan, on planning and zoning. Dr. John F. Sly's chairmanship of the meeting will guarantee a well-directed, informative evening.

Identity Revealed. The week began with revelation that the New York Life Insurance Company is the hitherto unidentified "large financial institution" which has bought the Sloan Estate from the University for the $1,000,000 housing project. As was pointed out here a fortnight ago, plans are now at the point where ground can be broken this month.

Meanwhile N. Y. Life has set up an information office in Room 28, First National Bank Building, where inquiries (not applications) will be handled. The telephone number is 3456.

April Banquets Bring November Votes. Princeton's Democrats, resurgent in Borough politics now for more than a year, last week gave evidence of continued on-the-ball activity. In Anthony Nini's bar and grill on Lytle Street, a Springdale Selected. The 1946 national intercollegiate golf championship tournament will be played over Princeton's sporty Springdale course, June 27th through June 29th, with the University acting as host to the best golfers the nation's campuses have to offer.

The type of tournament, which in pre-Pearl Harbor days consisted of 36 holes of medal play for the team title and to qualify 64 men for match play for the individual championship, will be determined by the size of the entering field. It would not be out of line to expect entrants from as many as 75 different institutions. Ohio State University will be the defending national champion.

Kegling Laurels. As the keen competition in Princeton's major bowling leagues draws to its seasonal close, interest on the local alleys is being focussed upon the contestants for the community's individual crowns. This week—with the largest field in history entering the battle royal for the championship now held by Merrill Flood—announcement was made of first-round byes for the 13 seeded bowlers in the Men's Tournament.

Only one of the early favorites, Bernard DiVido, was not awarded a free ticket into the second round, so, when the eliminations open on April 22d, the following men will be waiting for the field to catch up with them: Flood, Joseph Perpetua, Albert Leffel, Barney Carroll, John Cooper, Anthony Amaleitano, Norman White, Ernest Luginbuhl, Frank Ferrara, Dominic Talia, Thomas White and Prosper Ashbacher.

News of the Theatres

The Playhouse

The Sailor Takes a Wife (Friday, Saturday) Robert Walker and June Allyson are starred in a comedy about a sailor whose interrupted honeymoon is beset with numerous problems. The pace varies but the film is nearly always entertaining.

Devotion (Sunday through Wednesday) is a well acted but quite distorted version of the lives and loves of Charlotte, Emily and Anne Bronte. Aware that the inaccuracies will bother no more than a tenth of the customers, Warner Brothers have tossed fact aside, come up with a romantic bit strongly reminiscent of "Little Women." Ida Lupino, Paul Henreid and Olivia de Havilland head the cast.

The Virginian (Thursday, Friday, Saturday) is the third version of Owen Wister's famous novel about the Vermont school teacher and the Virginia gentleman whose lives are moulded by the seething West in its early years. Barbara Britton and Joel McCrea stand out in this well-played classic, which benefits from superb technicolor photography.

The Garden

The Return of Frank James (Friday, Saturday) is another western in color which tells of the fate that befell the men who murdered Jesse James, Frank's brother. Henry Fonda and Gene Tierney are the principals.

Snafu (Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday) is a fast-moving farce about a 17-year old veteran who returns home after two years of service gained when the recruiting officer believed his estimate of his age. In Henry Aldrich style, a series of amusing incidents provides fresh and innocent humor. The late Robert Benchley and Newcomer Conrad Janis, 17, make a good father-and-son team.

Cinderella Jones (Thursday, Friday, Saturday) features Joan Leslie as a girl who inherits a fortune, can only have it if she marries a husband with an I.Q. of 150. Off to college she goes to locate one, becomes involved in various college cut-ups reminiscent of the Thoughtless Twenties. Here and there in the picture, a song or two is sung.

bring, King Football will return to the University Campus on Monday, as the Tigers open a month of spring practice. In charge of the somewhat informal sessions will be able Franklin Cappon, Navy veteran and Wes Fesler's successor as end coach and varsity basketball mentor. With Head Coach Charlie Caldwell deeply concerned with the defense of Old Nassau's title in the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League, it will be Cappon's responsibility to welcome to the gridiron fold those men who hope to qualify for varsity consideration next fall.

Throughout the April-May preview of newcomers to the Tiger scene and men recently returned from the Armed Forces, the stress will be upon fundamentals, with the coaches seizing every opportunity to appraise the potential value of talent that was not available in 1945. There will be no heavy contact work.

In keeping with the philosophy of coaching that stamps Caldwell as one of the outstanding coaches in the East, if not in the country, is his attitude towards aspirants for varsity football berths. Any one "who shows anything this spring," or any one with "a fighting chance of making the club," will be welcomed back to the traditional pre-season football "camp" next September.

Hawks Top Jokers. By a count of 36-32, the Hawks edged out the Jokers in the Community Basketball League finals last week. The winning team, managed by Raymond Holmes, included Thomas Taylor, George Holmes, Richard and Sidney Kidd, James Jones, James Larkin, and Richard Bracey. To the winners went the trophy donated by Edmund D. Cook.
